"Operation Lifesaver" . . . The Big Bomb Drops Today!

By the time this paper reaches most of our readers, the mammoth civil defence evacuation scheme "Operation Lifesaver," will be a matter of history. We hope it reads well in the final reports.

However, at the time of this writing the "it" bomb has not dropped but the weatherman has been working overtime and has dropped rain continuously for several hours. Should the weather remain the same it will give observers a real insight on just what could happen as regards roads, accommodation facilities, feeding the hordes, etc.

Plans have been made for parking, entertainment, hot coffee, lost and found articles, medical services and all other problems which may be anticipated.

In the next issue we will have a report for you on just how the invasion progressed in this area.

An Editorial . . .

Arena For Grain Storage?

Officials of various grain companies have approached the board of management of the Didsbury Memorial Arena regarding the possibility of using the building for storage of grain. The length of rental period has been suggested as two or three years.

A meeting is scheduled in the very near future with representatives of the elevator companies, following which a gathering of interested local organizations will be called to make a final decision.

In any such move of this type there are those for it and those against. At this time we do not wish to voice our opinion.

Rumors, prevalent as presents at a birthday party, have been coming in from all angles. One that sounds good: 200,000 bushels at 1c per bushel. That adds up to about $12,000 per annum.

For the time being we can only wait for the powers that be to give us the signal on just what future operations can be expected in the vicinity of the arena.

ICE CHIPS:

At a meeting of the Didsbury Ramblers Hockey Club, held last Friday evening, it was decided to ask the Central Alberta Hockey League for a one year leave-of-absence. The old executive, with a few exceptions, will handle the interests of the club during this period.

The curling club will hold a meeting in the arena on Thursday evening at 8:30 to talk over present problems and will also discuss the advisability of using the building for grain storage.

Should the arena be used for purposes other than hockey and skating, town officials have plans in mind regarding the maintenance of outdoor skating tanks.

More on the above later!

Didsbury Pioneer... June 1909

While in the process of tearing down a house, that of J. W. Dagleford, a copy of the Didsbury Pioneer, dated June 23, 1909 was discovered by the workmen. It contains the names of many old-timers of the district, as well as an insight on market prices and merchandise which was available more years ago than most of us care to remember.

We quote from different sections of the paper. When we say quote we mean just that; this is the way it appeared in print:

"MUD SERVICE"

Parked trucks often filled the entire block in front of the High Prairie Manse. These trucks were from many parts of Canada and the U.S. They carried many different kinds of cargo. Often one or more of these trucks in the fleet would bear this label — "Mud Service". Their task was to carry mud, and to carry it for many miles.

It was interesting to learn the very important part mud actually plays in the drilling of oil wells.

I read a statement which showed that the cost of mud used on one difficult well was over twelve thousand dollars. Different kinds of mud are required for different wells. The quality and the consistency must meet the particular need.

This mud lines the wall of the well, and keeps the well from caving. It also acts as a heavy oil to the drill-shaft, forcing the pieces of rock, cut loose at the bottom to the surface, and at the same time keeping down the gas which is always seeking to escape.

One worker said, "No mud no oil," to which another replied, "no mud no men." "The Lord God formed man, the dust of the ground," Gen. 2:7 and dust is dry mud. Jesus made mud of the dust of the ground to anoint blind eyes. In all our lives there are blind spots that result in lost time, wasted strength, unused talents, undervalued business and unseized opportunities. These blind spots anointed by Christ would result in greater benefits in the life of man than man can measure.

No man need stay as he is, there is plenty of comfort for all. Some years ago a little wrinkled bell-shaped flower grew wild on low land and in muddy places. Then a man of understanding gave the little plant some culture and care and in doing so gave us the large variety of glads that make gardens smile, cheer places of worship and grace our banqueting tables.

There was once a little weed that farmers said hard things about. In spite of all that, this little weed, under the influence and care and culture has become the parent plant of acres of water and beauty. We enjoy the offspring of this weed in the many mums of the many sizes and many colors that cheer the hearts of more people than we dare try to number.

A man leaned over a fence, looking into a beautiful garden that was none other than a converted mud-hole. The beauty amazed him and he cried out, "what a place of beauty." "Surely," said a voice from within the garden, "I live here." Dare I ask myself has my mud been turned into beauty? Is the world more beautiful because I live in it?

A field of chrysanthemums is a field of weeds plus its anointing with interest, culture and care, and a Christian society is men of common clay plus God.

"He breathed into him the breath of life and man became a living soul." Gen. 2:7 "Forget it not till crowns are crumbled, and the swords of the kings are rent with rust — forget it not till the hills be humbled, and the springs of the seas run dry."

Just goes to show that in this age of aluminum it isn't just the newest marvels that make use of aluminum but some of man's oldest inventions, too. ## NOTES

By
W. K. SNYDER
Agricultural Service Board

The war against invading rats continues unabated along Alberta's eastern border. A few scattered cases have been found west of the infested area; apparently these were rats migrating to take up new living quarters. Generally, the line of infestation has not changed appreciably since last fall and most rat colonies are confined within 12 miles of the Saskatchewan border. There are eight Pest Control officers on full time duty in the infested area. They report good results from the use of water baits of Phivalyn and Warfarin. These anticoagulant poisons are readily accepted and safe to use when recommendations are followed. Although we in this area have enjoyed freedom from this pesky nuisance, the rat nevertheless we should all be on guard constantly to make sure they do not invade and establish themselves here. IT COULD HAPPEN. Fall is the time of the year when rats are looking around for comfortable winter quarters. They have been known to travel in packing cases as hitch-hikers. We don't want to be like the boy who cried WOLF! but at the same time we all want to be on the alert and keep a sharp lookout. If you should happen to see what you think is a rat please let me know and we will investigate and take the necessary action to cope with any invaders.

GAME REGULATIONS OFFER
HUNTER MORE

Some hunters have been under the impression that the hunting of deer has been wide open for the province. This was previously published but the game regulations do not indicate this.

So far as deer are concerned, they read:
Deer (male only): In that part of the province lying west of No. 2 highway from Carway to Edmonton and north of the North Saskatchewan River, Edmonton to the Saskatchewan boundary.

In the past few years there have been many deer sighted east of the No. 2 highway, and it was thought that there would be permission to hunt these. Changes however, indicate that this is not so.

So far as moose are concerned, they have returned to the big game category with hunting restricted to that part of the province lying north of the Bow River; or on a special permit in the special areas indicated at special times.

The other regulations are as follows:
Mountain Goat — Throughout the Province.
Mountain Sheep — (male only) — throughout the province.
Elk (Wapiti) — (Male only) in that part of the Province lying west of No. 2 highway and north of the heights of land forming the watershed between the waters flowing into the Highwood River and Mosquito Creek to the north and the waters flowing into the Oldman River, the Livingstone River and Willow Creek to the south.

Elk (Wapiti) — (male or Female). In that part of the Province lying west of No. 2 highway and south of the area described in the preceding paragraph.
Caribou — (Male only) On Special Licence in Special Area lying north of Jasper National Park.

Bear Grizzly — Throughout the Province. (Females with cubs protected).
Bear (Black, Brown or Cinnamon) — In any part of the Province contained within any Forest Reserve. (Females with cubs protected).
Bear Limits: The maximum number of animals that may be taken under any Licence is five, which shall

CAN WE REDUCE SUDDEN DEATH ON CANADIAN FARMS?

Despite its advantages, farming is not a safe occupation, points out the National Safety Council.

Accidental death comes to Canadian farmers twice as often as it does to those engaged in trade. Last year three farmers died from accidents for every fisherman so killed. The accident mortality rate on farms is 34 times as great as that in financial institutions.

The Department of Labour, Ottawa, source of this information on fatal accidents, gives their cause. While ordinary animals, such as cattle and horses, kill some farmers every year, and while lightning strikes the occasional blow, the greatest single source of accidental death on the farm is machinery.

Tractor and loadmovers, cars and trucks collide or topple or crush. Belts and pulleys also take their toll. The threat of machines is not likely to diminish, points out the National Safety Council, as farms increasingly become mechanized.

Now that a knowledge of machinery — as well as of stock breeding, soil conservation, and marketing — is required of the farmer, might he not take a leaf from the book of the professional mechanic? If he does, he stands a chance of increasing his life span.

Mechanics and others employed in large factories today know that it does not pay to work at steady grind hour after hour. Their employers know it, too. Consequently, the coffee break has today become a regular part of factory practice.

At 10:30 in the morning and 3:30 in the afternoon, workers in many plants shut off their machines, take a stroll, a cup of coffee, stretch their legs, and exchange conversation with their fellows. The brief "break" relaxes and refreshes them, enabling them to banish fatigue.

Fatigue, many observers suspect, is the basic cause of many accidents. It is not so much machines go out of kilter; it is human endurance that has a limit. Fatigued, a man grows careless and immediately becomes accident-prone.

Inattention, even a momentary period of day-dreaming, or a brief disregard of safety rules may lead to sudden death on the farm, as elsewhere. The rural adoption of the coffee break according to safety experts may lessen the risk and reduce the number of accidental deaths on Canadian farms which stood at 104 in 1954 according to preliminary official figures.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

How righteous thoughts and actions lead to lasting health and happiness will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "REALITY." Scriptural selections to be read include Paul's advice to the Philippians (4:8): "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report: if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." Correlative passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include the following (361: 4): "Hold thou steadfastly to the enduring, the good, and the true, and you will bring these into your experience proportionally to their occupancy of your thoughts." The Golden Text is from Jeremiah (31:10): "The Lord hath brought forth our righteousness; come, and let us declare in Zion the work of our God."

be a Mountain Goat, a Mountain Sheep, a Grizzly Bear, a Black Bear and One of either Elk, Moose, Deer, or under Special Licence, one Caribou.

Attention big game hunters — Don't waste some hides. These hides are useful to the Indians if you don't use them yourself. Kindly leave big game hides with the nearest Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Game Officers, or Forest Ranger for delivery to the nearest Indian reservation.

Sound Policy For Agriculture

A good farmer will always keep his feet on the ground for it is on the ground that he depends for his living, and it is from the ground that he learns his most useful lessons. There can be no chasm between the farmer and his land. He knows that the land will be bountiful to him if he deals fairly with it; and he knows that if he muzzles the land he himself will be the first to suffer for his misconduct.

The land really belongs to the whole human race. But long experience has taught us that the land will not support people who misuse it or neglect it. In order to make it productive and to keep it so, men have found it necessary to make someone responsible for it. The justification for the private ownership is the best means of inducing men to become responsible for keeping the land productive.

Nature will not yield her fruits to those who neglect their land. She starves them out, she has to do it or all the lands would become deserts. If men interfere with nature's process of eliminating the poor farmers, they will suffer for it by going short of food.

It is not in the best interests of the country that its farmers should become even partially dependent on the government, for such dependence would make them less dependent on the land and might encourage them to neglect it.

Present tendencies are all in the direction of supplementing farm incomes with payments out of the tax revenues of the government. This is a subversive practice to which the farmers should not submit, for it will undermine their independence and destroy their self respect by reducing them to the status of supplicants for public charity.

The farmer's independence, his right to manage his own affairs, is worth more to him than any financial aid the government can give him. Guaranteed prices, guaranteed profits will undermine any industry that allows itself to become dependent on them.

Good farmers are prospering today and have been for several years. They are not dissipating their energies pursuing fanciful schemes for controlling the markets or having the government guarantee their prices. They are devoting their attention to the more important problems of improving the quality and yields of their crops.

The experiences of the last decade have shown that government marketing, wheat pools, producer controlled marketing schemes, supported prices, have all failed to find markets for the crops that might have been sold long ago if no attempt had been made to dictate the prices the consumers should pay for them.

Government did a wonderful job of helping agriculture as long as they devoted their energies to finding better ways of caring for the soil, better varieties of crops to grow, better ways of caring for livestock, better ways of combating weeds, pests and diseases of plants and animals, better ways of preparing their products for market and better grading and inspection systems.

A sound Government policy toward Canadian agriculture would include:

1. Termination of all financial assistance to farmers, except in cases of national disaster.
2. Restoring the free market for all agricultural products.
3. Discouraging all attempts to get control of the market or the prices for any farm products.
4. Correcting false propaganda and misinformation on marketing.
5. Co-operation with the farmers in conserving their land and water resources, the government furnishing the expert knowledge and advice, and the farmers doing the work.

GAS LINE IN SIGHT?

After five years of trying to fit together all the many pieces of the Trans-Canada Pipe Line puzzle — it now looks as if Alberta gas may start flowing eastward by early 1956. Break in the dispute came when Ottawa announced its willingness to with Ontario in building the long expensive band through the rocks and bush of Northern Ontario.

If plans work out it will be one of the biggest construction jobs ever undertaken in Canada.

Running from the eastern boundary of Alberta to Montreal the line will represent some 2,350 miles of "big inch" pipeline. This is a little over 100 miles longer than the big south-to-north gas pipeline of Tennessee Gas Transmission Corp. in U.S.

The Alberta-to-Winnipeg section will consist of 34-inch pipe; the Winnipeg to Kapuskasing, Ont., section will be 30-inch. The Toronto to Montreal extension a 24-inch pipe. Pipeline steel tonnage is estimated to run around 625,000 tons.

WEDDINGS

MOORE - ELLIOTT

Saturday, August 27 was indeed a happy and memorable occasion when Sylvia Jane, second daughter of Mrs. Moore and the late Thomas Moore, and Robert George Elliott, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Elliott of Didsbury exchanged marriage vows at the first wedding service and the little church in the Valley "St. Saviours" which was made beautiful with flowers. Rev. A. Sargent officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Roy Moore, entered the church to strains of the wedding march and was lovely in a dress of grey blue silk lattice with net over. She carried a white prayer book adorned with red gladioli and white sweet peas and streams of white satin ribbon. She wore a head wreath of matching red gladioli and sweet peas.

Her only attendant, Jean Mould, looked lovely in a dress of beige and yellow orlon. She carried a colonial bouquet of pale yellow gladioli and deep blue cornflowers and wore a wreath to match. Lloyd Moore, brother of the bride, supported the groom.

Mrs. L. S. Taft was organist. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Henry Lindseth sang "I Love You Truly."

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's mother, where covers were laid for twelve. Mrs. Moore received the guests in a grey suit and wore a corsage of red roses and white sweet peas. Mr. Moore proposed the toast to the bride.

In the early evening open house was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Doll where the best man of the groom and the many friends who attended laden with beautiful gifts testified to the popularity of the young couple. A dance followed held in the Institute Hall which had been tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers, silver and white wedding bells, where a large crowd made merry until the small hours. A buffet lunch was served at midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will make their home in Kitwana, B.C. where the groom is employed by Kitwana sawmills.

MORE FARM ACCIDENTS

Last week Fred Raymond Davies, farmer in the Veteran district, was killed when pinned under his tractor.

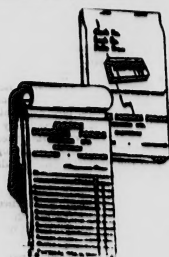

In another accident, a 12-year-old boy in the Lac la Biche area was killed when his team ran away during threshing operations. He was thrown from his wagon and received fatal injuries.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Long before this, both labor and management should have learned that they dispute concern a lot of other people. Life would be smoother and happier if it were not so. But in our complex economy it is just not possible to have a strike or even a threat of strike in any industry without involving a lot of outsiders.

There are the strike's wives and families. Surely they have some interest in the matter. There are other industries with their labor forces which supply raw materials to or buy finished goods from the strike-bound plant. And there are the consumers who in the end must pay for every strike either in higher prices or delay in deliveries or both.

Strikes concern a lot of people who are never seen and seldom reported around the bargaining table.
